

KLove serves me in my local community everywhere I go. From Alaska to Texas to Colorado, I always search for KLOVE. KLOVE has also influenced my children. My daughter always requests KLOVE when asked what kind of music she wants to hear. I stumbled upon KLOVE in Fairbanks, AK, and it has improved my life and the lives of my children. So imagine how many other lives are being improved in just one community, not to mention all of the communities supporting KLOVE.

If KLOVE were to be displaced by other programs I know that more people than none would be lost. KLOVE is a way of life. Moral would go way down, along with positive influence around the country.

I believe that the service provided by KLOVE is in the public's best interest. Not only for the music, but for all of the other entertaining, educational blocks. People continue to grow personally and spiritually when listening to KLOVE. Taking it away would leave people stagnant.
